Course Description: Rome's "imperial" period traditionally begins with the "princeps" Augustus consolidating an empire stretching from Spain to Persia, Ethiopia to Russia, under a centralized bureaucracy. The period ends with Rome's Islamic successor driving two tiny survivors, Byzantium and Charlemagne's Holy Roman Empire, back under cover. This course will outline the evolving imperial strategies and their social effects. It will also attempt to explain the vast shift from Augustus' laissez-faire conglomeration of peoples and kingdoms to Diocletian's totalitarian state, from the great pax romana (Roman peace) to the endless battles with wave after wave of "barbarians," from syncretic polytheism to the theocracy of Theodosius and his Muslim followers, in short, from antiquity to the "middle age."
